

The onboarding of a new joiner into the customer marketing team at Dabur India Limited necessitates a profound understanding of a legacy that spans over 141 years. Dabur is not merely an FMCG company; it is the world's largest Ayurvedic and natural healthcare organization, a position built upon the integration of ancient wisdom with modern scientific rigor. For a customer marketing professional, this heritage serves as the primary differentiator in a hyper-competitive market. The core philosophy centers on "Consumer Focus," ensuring a superior understanding of consumer needs to develop products that fulfill them better than any competitor. This consumer-centricity must be translated by the customer marketing team into "Customer-Centricity," where the "customer" refers to the vast network of over 8.4 million retail outlets and 1.32 lakh villages that form the backbone of Dabur's distribution.