

Report: Introduction to Bira 91 Guest Call Handling

Score: 7 / 11

Percentage: 64%

Lucid Feedback Summary

Congratulatory Opening

Thank you for completing the module Quiz! You are making solid progress in mastering conflict resolution and guest experience techniques. Achieving a 64% shows that you have a strong foundational grasp of the core concepts, and with just a little fine-tuning on the more advanced scenarios, you will be well on your way to mastery.

Overall Performance Summary

You scored 7 out of 11 (64%) on this assessment. A closer look at your results reveals exceptional performance on foundational and practical questions. You scored perfectly on all “Remember,” “Understand,” and “Apply” level questions, proving that you know the standard operating procedures. However, the assessment highlights an opportunity to grow in higher-order cognitive skills; you faced challenges with “Analyze,” “Evaluate,” and “Create” level questions, specifically regarding the nuances of de-escalation, call routing, and proactive guest interactions.

Strengths Identified

- Foundational Knowledge: You perfectly recalled the L.A.S.T. method acronym and clearly understand the philosophical difference between a “Customer Service” mindset and a “Guest Experience” mindset.
- Practical Application: You are highly capable of applying procedures to daily tasks. You correctly identified how to adjust vocal mechanics for giving instructions, how to appropriately place a guest on hold, and how to properly apply the “Apologize” step in real-time.
- Hold Management: You successfully demonstrated great judgment in managing hold times, knowing exactly when and how to refresh a timeframe with a guest.

Areas for Improvement

- Call Routing & Transfers (Q6): Distinguishing the operational differences between warm transfers (providing context) and cold transfers (routing without context).
- The Psychology of Active Listening (Q8): Understanding the deeper purpose of paraphrasing. It is not just a transition tool, but a crucial method for validating the guest psychologically and confirming data accuracy.
- Advanced De-escalation Strategies (Q9): Navigating intense emotional interactions. Attempting to establish authority by speaking over a loud guest often escalates the issue, whereas allowing them to vent neutrally is highly effective.
- Proactive Discovery (Q11): Formulating guest-centric responses that utilize open-ended questions to build rapport and gather context, rather than rushing to provide a solution or transfer.

Actionable Study Recommendations

- Review Call Transfer Protocols: Re-read the module materials detailing transfer types. Focus on why warm transfers are preferred in a guest experience mindset (to prevent the guest from having to repeat themselves).
- Study the Psychology of De-escalation: Revisit the “Listen” phase of the L.A.S.T. method. Note how remaining silent, allowing the guest to vent, and using a calm tone naturally diffuses high emotions much better than asserting dominance.
- Practice the “Why” behind Active Listening: When reviewing notes on paraphrasing, memorize its dual purpose: ensuring you have the correct information and making the guest feel heard.
- Role-Play the Discovery Phase: Practice responding to simple inquiries (like bulk orders or event hosting) by writing down 2-3 open-ended questions (who, what, where, when) you can ask to personalize the conversation before offering a direct solution.

Encouraging Closing Remarks

Keep up the fantastic work! Transitioning from a basic customer service mindset to a true guest experience professional requires mastering these exact conversational nuances. By reviewing the recommended areas and applying these strategies to your upcoming practice scenarios, you will undoubtedly see your skills—and your scores—continue to rise.
